MISSION PRIORITIES OF THE TELFORD CIRCUIT 2025

The traditional idea of mission is growth in attendance at church services. This model is about transforming 'them' into 'us' and is based on the buildings in which we worship, therefore is doomed to fail as it is mainly about maintaining what we have always done and not moving out of our comfort zones. Therefore we need to reassess our idea of mission and engaging with the community - building God's kingdom and not just our churches. A more contemporary model of mission is the idea of meaning – how do we become a justice-seeking church. It is about forming relationships with God, other people and the community. This can be liberating but also challenging at the same time because it doesn't measure itself against the size of church attendance. We don't always have to do what we've always done – change can be scary but God has got it in hand.

At the Circuit Meeting of 12th March 2025 the Trustees of the Circuit Meeting approved our new Circuit Mission Strategy which is as follows:

The calling of the Methodist Church is to respond to the gospel of God's love in Christ and to live out its discipleship in worship and mission. It does this through:

Worship	The Church exists to increase awareness of God's presence and to celebrate God's love
Learning and Caring	The Church exists to help people to grow and learn as Christians, through mutual support and care.
Service	The Church exists to be a good neighbour to people in need and to challenge injustice.
Evangelism	The Church exists to make more followers of Jesus Christ

Alongside this expression of Our Calling, the Methodist Church has established principles of being a growing, evangelistic, inclusive and Justice-Seeking church and is working to embed them within our polity.

This expression of calling and these principles of being growing, evangelistic, inclusive and justice-seeking apply to the Telford Circuit of the Methodist Church. Within Methodist polity, the Circuit is understood to be the basic unit of mission. This means that the local churches of the circuit are interdependent, mutually supportive and intentionally living and working under the same mission priorities and principles, albeit whilst being in differing geographic and sociological contexts. The Circuit does not function in separation from the local churches and pieces of work. The local churches and pieces of work cannot be complete in separation from each other and the Circuit. This is the expression of the distinct and important Methodist principle of Connexionalism.

This connexional principle means that there is one mission being currently delivered across the Telford Circuit by the sixteen churches of the circuit, one school and other work not located in specific buildings. This does not, however, mean that each of those churches and pieces of work look the same. Styles of worship, learning needs, opportunities for being good neighbours and the way we seek to make more followers of Jesus Christ differ from location to location. The human, financial and building resources differ from location to location. Consequently, the ability of each local church and piece of work to engage missionally with its context differs from location to location. It is the purpose of the Circuit, as the basic unit of mission, to equip, enable and encourage each local church to be missional communities, built upon this expression of calling and these principles of being growing, evangelistic, inclusive and justice-seeking.

The Circuit and the Circuit Meeting are important and powerful entities within Methodist polity. The Circuit controls a substantial portion of the financial and human resources and the Circuit Meeting sets the tone for the Circuit. The members of the Circuit Meeting are managing trustees responsible for the management of the financial resources of the Circuit. Alongside the Superintendent Minister, the Circuit Meeting is responsible for the allocation of lay and ordained ministry resources across the churches and pieces of work. These ministry resources include both the allocation of ordained and lay pastoral ministry to the churches and the creation of the quarterly preaching plan. The Circuit Meeting is directly responsible for those pieces of work that do not currently fall under the control of a local church, such as the work of John Fletcher of Madeley Methodist/CofE Primary School and the Pioneer Mission work currently being explored in Lawley. Although supported and enabled by the Circuit Meeting, the Pioneer Mission work at Dawley Christian Centre is the responsibility of the Dawley Church Council. Decisions about the life of each local church, and the way they respond to the mission priorities, are the responsibility of the managing trustees in each place, meeting as the Church Council. Whilst some of our local churches may have access to substantial financial and human resources, this is not the case for several others. Some of our churches and pieces of work depend very much on the support of the Circuit in order to continue in existence. The mission priorities of the Circuit should be the guiding factor in decision making about the allocation of financial and human resources from the Circuit to the local churches. The Circuit Meeting has the authority to allocate financial and human resources to local churches in accordance to those local churches' engagement with Our Calling and their potential to be growing, evangelistic, inclusive and justice-seeking.

The Circuit's support of each local church and piece of work will look different in each context. In coming to a mind about the specific way the Circuit supports each local church and piece of work, the Circuit Leadership Team and the Circuit Meeting become critical places of decision making. Such decisions shall not, however, be random or ad hoc but shall be consistent with the mission priorities established in this document. In 2023 the Telford Circuit adopted a system of Growth Groups. These groups are not intended to be self-expressing entities but are intended, as their names suggest, to encourage and enable growth in the area of concern that they represent. The intended growth is measured in the appropriate increase of engagement by local churches in the area of mission and ministry concerned. The Growth Groups are places in which curiosity is engaged, enthusiasm is generated and resources are gathered in order that local churches become mobilised. Making minor changes to the 2023 structure, the Growth Groups are:

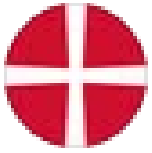

1. Children and Young People
2. Evangelism and Growth
3. Inclusion and Justice
4. Discipleship and Mission

In addition to the four Growth Groups there is a Resources Support Group which concerns itself with all aspects of finance and property. The Circuit Local Preachers' and Leaders of Worship Meeting hold the portfolio for leading the advancement of matters of Worship and expressions of spirituality across the Circuit. The Circuit Stewards are responsible for staff wellbeing and support. The Circuit Invitations Committee is a standing committee responsible for the management of the appointment of ordained ministers (presbyters and deacons). The Circuit Safeguarding Officer promotes our safeguarding policies and practices across the Circuit and supports church safeguarding officers in their role.

WATERING HOLES AND WELLS : APPLICATION OF OUR PRIORITIES

In the natural world watering holes and wells are important places. They are places of gathering, places of sustenance and places of life-giving. Australian Ranchers tell that, in order to keep their cattle within the boundaries of the vast lands, they do not build fences but dig wells. As we consider the application of our mission priorities to the life of the Telford Circuit, we ask what and where are our watering holes and wells? Are our current churches viable, in the right place, doing the right work? Are there places where the watering holes have dried up and the wells exhausted? Are there places in the geographical area of the Circuit where we need to dig wells, places where we currently have no presence (church planting)? Are there people who desire to have a relationship with the living God, but for whom the church is not a place of sustenance or safety (pioneer mission)? What does it mean for us to be justice-seeking? How do we make our voices heard in campaigning for those things we have a passion to support or change? What are we doing in each church to be inclusive and do we recognise instances where, out of ignorance or wilfulness, we deliberately or unconsciously exclude. Is it possible that the very act of inclusion is also an act of excluding, and how do we manage the contradictory convictions that are sometimes present in our churches? How do we become more Christ-like in our discipleship? Are there wider concerns that we are not currently addressing that we should be addressing?

It is clear that, in applying our established mission priorities, there are many questions to ask and situations to consider. In exercising management of resources, in generating vision and purpose, in supporting the development of mission and ministry and in encouraging growth in discipleship, the Circuit Meeting bears a significant burden of responsibility. Local Churches also bear significant responsibility to engage with the mission priorities, to be proactive in working for the Kingdom, to be wells of sustenance and places of potential. It is the responsibility of the Circuit to support, encourage and direct resources towards those churches where fulfilment of these responsibilities is evident. It is also the responsibility of the Circuit to challenge those churches which do not show evidence of such engagement. It might even be the responsibility of the Circuit to withdraw or withhold support, encouragement and resources from those places where watering holes have dried up and the wells exhausted. The engagement of the local church with the Circuit Mission Priorities, their potential to be a viable missional community will inform decisions about financial support for property, allocation of ministerial time, the creation of the quarterly preaching plan. Resources shall not be allocated equally, but according to need and potential. In some places, local churches may be encouraged to consider merging trusteeship to move the energy away from maintenance of the structures and towards fulfilment of mission potential. In other places, churches may be encouraged celebrate a faithful history, recognise its completion and lay down the work. Conversely, some churches need greater allocation of these resources to bring their potential into fruition. Some churches are in areas of immense need and are engaging with communities in crisis. Some churches gather together people who have nowhere else to be. Some churches have little opportunity for generating income but are places where the waters of missional potential fill the well to overflowing. Additionally, the exploration of pioneer mission and ministry, the creation of new places for new people, the digging of wells in places of potential, projects for growth in discipleship will be priorities in the allocation of resources.

The walking pace needs to be brisk (around 3mph) to keep to the estimated timings. Rachel expects to reach Wellington at about 1pm and you are especially welcome to share in the prayers and to bring a packed lunch to eat here. Drinks will be provided. Dear Friends,

I do a lot of "extreme" indoor rowing.

From 11th May, a group from my rowing class, will each be rowing 7 marathons in 7 days in aid of MND and Severn Hospice.

We are being encouraged to seek sponsorship from friends and contact groups etc.

If anybody is able to sponsor me for this event it will be greatly appreciated. I have attached the QR code for the giving page, but if anybody is not familiar/able to use this method, please let me know so that alternative arrangements can be made.

Thank you.

Pray with us today.

Teach us, Lord, to seek your face in those who think they are faceless; your word among those who are voiceless; and your transforming presence among those who feel powerless. Draw us to yourself that we may be active contemplatives in the heart of your world, discovering afresh the presence of Jesus wherever it is disguised and honouring you in the face of the neighbour, the lowly appearance of bread and wine, and the walk of daily service, that we might follow where you lead and respond with warmed hearts and active hands. Amen.

The Methodist Central Hall, a historic building in Birmingham's Corporation Street, is now up for sale.

The property, which is at the heart of plans to develop a new hotel and leisure complex, is being marketed by Savills and Sanderson Weatherall, although no guide price has been revealed.

The grade II*-listed building, designed by local architects Ewan Harper and James A Harper and completed in 1904, offers 90,400 sq ft of space. It's a well-known city centre landmark, having once housed the famous Que Club until 2017, which saw performances from bands like Daft Punk, David Bowie, and Blur.

Despite its rich history, the building has largely been vacant for many years and has fallen into disrepair, even featuring on Heritage England's At Risk Register. In 2022, Irish companies Press Up Hospitality and Oakmount were granted planning permission by the city council to transform the building into 'The Dean', a 155-bedroom hotel.

The redevelopment plans also include a rooftop restaurant, food and drink outlets, restoration of the central hall for events, and a three-storey extension to the roof. The project was expected to create around 400 jobs

However, despite these ambitious plans, no work has commenced on the mixed-use complex, and receivers were appointed by the project's funder last year, reports Business Live.

Michael Maguire, director in the Savills Birmingham development team, commented on the sale of Central Hall: "The sale of Central Hall presents a rare freehold development opportunity to acquire arguably one of Birmingham's most iconic Victorian buildings in Birmingham city centre."

He further highlighted the building's prime position and potential, saying, "Given its prime location, in the heart of the civic quarter, and the huge potential it has to create an exciting, hotel-led development, with scope for potential alternate uses, we are expecting the site to attract a high level of interest."

We are excited to share our theme for Lent 2025, 'Soul Food'

In the wilderness, Jesus reminded us that people don't live by bread alone. Each week during Lent 2025, we'll reflect on what sustains us, based on the lectionary Gospel passage for Sunday.

If anyone has any spare balls of wool they don't need, can you let Sharon (01952 505108) in the Circuit office know please?

At Dawley we are making knitted and crocheted blankets for the dementia patients at the Princess Royal Hospital.

The colourful blankets help patients, particularly those with dementia, to find their way back to bed more easily – and also see the edge of the bed more clearly when getting in and out. They also provide a more homely feel to the wards. Thank you.

Lent

Come along and join us for our Lent Course with Lunch and find out more about Jesus!

Dawley Christian Centre

Wednesday 5th, 12th, 19th & 26th March

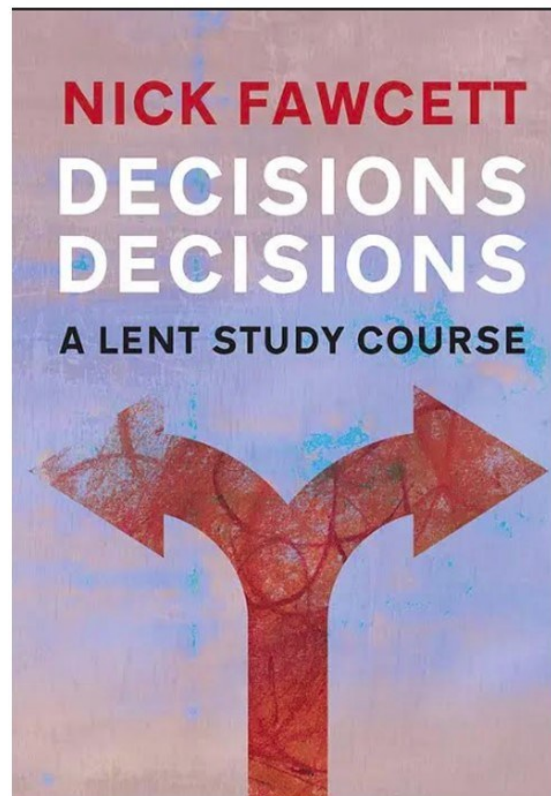

And 2nd and 9th April between 12:30-2:30pm

The Lent course is based on Nick Fawcett's book, Decisions Decisions.

We make decisions every day - big and small, unimportant and life changing, good decisions and bad, easy and hard to make. We can ask God for his help and search the Scriptures for guidance, but ultimately decisions are ours alone. This is the essence of free will, and also the essence of Lent. Like Jesus in the wilderness, we must wrestle with the issues of life and the challenge of faith.

Exploring different aspects of life's decisions through biblical passages and personal experiences, the six weekly sessions include prayers, activities, discussion questions, meditations, suggestions for further reading and ideas for action. This course offers an opportunity to reflect on the challenge of Lent and the decisions God calls us to make.
